

International Union of Soil Science
I U S S
Symposium
Sub-commission A

Sustained Management of Irrigated Land for Salinity and Toxic Element Control

June 25 to 27, 2001
Riverside, California

As noted in the first announcement brochure in October 2000, this symposium will consist of three days of invited and volunteer oral presentations and posters. The symposium goal is to present research and management approaches for environmentally responsible, cost effective, sustainable agricultural production on salt and toxic element affected soils. The conference will consider technology for rapid measurement and assessment of salinity as well as chemical transport modeling, agronomic practices (such as plant selection), and management practices such as methods of reclaiming salt, sodic, or toxic ion affected soils while minimizing adverse effects of drainage return flows on receiving ecosystems.

Sessions will consist of oral talks and poster sessions organized around the following themes:

- 1) Measurement and assessment of salinity at the field and district scale,
- 2) Management practices for control of B, As, and Se in soils and drainage waters,
- 3) Modeling for salinity, sodicity and toxic element control,
- 4) Reclamation of saline, sodic, or toxic element affected soils, and
- 5) Irrigation with low quality waters; management practices and plant selection.

A dinner banquet will occur Tuesday evening June 26th. It is hoped there will be time to visit the University of California and Salinity Laboratory on June 26th before the banquet.

Two tour options offered: On June 28th there will be an optional field tour of Coachella Valley, including a visit to the Salton Sea, returning late that same day. Those wishing to also visit the Imperial Valley further south with an overnight stay in the Brawley area will return on June 29th.
